Phillies Win Protested Game from Giants—Row to Follow.

President Lynch of the National League has reversed the decision of Umpire Brennan, forfeiting to the Giants the game with Philadelphia August 30, and the contest will be put in the won column of the Quakers. Brennan halted the game in the ninth inning, with the score 8 to 6 in favor of Philadelphia.

Brennan gave the game to the Giants because spectators would not move from the centerfield bleachers. McGraw claimed they interfered with the vision of his batsmen.

As a result of Lynch's decision another case similar to the Fogel mess is impending. The New York club imagines itself above the law and will attempt to appeal to the National Commission. This plan will probably be knocked in the head, as Lynch's decision was made on an "extraordinary precedent."

Charges, however, will probably be brought against Charles Dooen, manager of the Quakers. It is alleged that after the game Dooen in the Philadelphia offices told President Hempstead of the Giants that New York could buy the umpiring in the league. This is construed as an imputation on the honesty of the league, and the Giant management will try to "get" the red-haired pilot of the Phillies.

Similar charges by Fogel last year resulted in his removal from the presidency of the Philadelphia club.

Dooen was probably angry to the point where he didn't care what he said, and with good reason. McGraw did not protest against the presence of the spectators until a man was out in the ninth inning and he saw victory slipping away.

Some baseball schedule, which doesn't give Chicago a game Labor Day or for three days thereafter.

One hundred and twelve firemen were overcome by smoke in a State street fire yesterday, but this accident was slight compared to the way the Cleveland Naps and their pennant dreams were suffocated by the White Sox. Pulmotors revived the fire ladders, but Joe Birmingham can use oxygen from now until the end of the season and his men will fail to respond to the treatment.

Jim Scott, Joe Benz, Buck Weaver, Hal Chase and Harry Lord used the smudge on the Naps with deadly effect. Monday the Sox looked like dubs when stacked against the Cleveland athletes. Yesterday the position was reversed.

Chase continued his game exhibition by sticking through both games and playing a bang-up article of ball. In the first encounter he did no damage with the stick, but in the second he got to a trio of Nap pitchers for a homer, triple and two singles in four times at bat. Weaver got five singles and a double in the two bat-
